Strand.

If you have witnessed John Barrymore's remarkable performance in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" at the Strand theater this week, perhaps you have wondered what the ingredients are in the mysterious liquid that the star drinks in order to make the transition from Jekyll to Hyde.

For some time, during the filming of the picture, a combination with the correct photographic qualities was sought. Mr. Barrymore himself made the discovery that synthetic buttermik, mixed thoroughly with cold coffee and with coffee grounds sprinkled nicely over the top answered the purpose very well.

Majestic.

"What is so rare as a day in June?"
warbled the poet. One answer is:
Snow in Los Angeles. But it was quite necessary that Fred Nible discover "a field of snowy white" for several of the scenes in "The False Road." the new Enid Bennett picture, which is now at the Majestic theater.

The action was supposed to take place during an old-fashioned New England blizzard. The ingenious Mr.
Nible, with the assistance of the Thomas H. Ince technical staff, arranged for the big storm to take place right in the Ince studio.

Princess.

Two clever girls, of entirely different the story, are appearing in support of the story, are appearing in support of Harry Carey in his latest production, "Bullet Proof," now on view at the Princess theater. Kathleen O'Connor plays the role of the girl from the East, while Featrice Burnham appears as the untained girl of the Western plains.

pring fever. This is especially true of he cornelist. Nat is the same nimble Loew's Lyceum.

Some weeks ago the editorial writer commented at length on a critic referring to a musician as playing hemusic. There is a man at Loew's Lyceum who plays he-music. Zelaya, former Nicaraguan attache, not unknown in Tennessee, for he married a Knoxville girl, is the top line attraction for the last half of the week. In addition to playing he-music in a fashion that simply stood Thursday's addiences on their heads, this chap is a show man. Zelaya interpolates in a quaint way his interpretation of the philosophy of jazz. As an entertainer and plainst Zelaya has had no equal here in a long, long time.

"The Financiers," a farcical skit, ensbles Matt Well to throw several fits and spill a lot of hokum. The quartet at times gives promise of some real singing, but traits off before they round out a high-class number. The woman cuts loose with several nifty steps and shakes in two dances. Irene and Douglas Carbey and Herb Knight and Marion Sawtelle offer two dance, song and talk acts that contain nothing out of the ordinary, yet nothing to warrant harsh words. Menrettl and Sidelli are tumblers. The former is a queer clown, hard working and not entirely out of the distinctive class in flops and falls.

There is a lot of pep and push in William Russell's latest comedy-drama, "Leave It to Me," the feature photoplay. untiring dancer. Is the same discussion of the contest of the cont intiring dancer. The mention of Swor is sufficient in commenting on blackface acts. John and Albert Swor have nothing especially original about their bit, but their dialogue, mannerisms and carnestness make their negro delineations above reproach. Doing three specialties and as many chorus numbers, the Newton Twins prove themselves charming feminine additions to the bill. The Four Roses, a quartet of girls, close with acrobatic dancing.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 4 - South ern Appalachian coat operators have appealed to the interstate Commerce commission for additional cars to move coal, according to officials of the association here last night. Every operator in this district, they asserted, is behind with contracts.

Coal operators declared that practically every mine on the Southern railway has been without coal cars since May 28, while on the Louis-file & Nashville railroad, they asserted, the car supply is only 35 per cent of normal.
